President's Notes

Continuing with the thanks to committee chairs, Carol Rouse, QPC, Dea Jae Shore, Winter Retreat, Sandra Lowell, Sign-In, Sherry Durringer, Story Books and Quilts To Go, and Terry Hooge, Welcoming. Great job gals, thanks again.

Mitered corners, who knew they could be easy. The two blocks made in Susan Cleveland's Saturday class were quick to make and edges meet. If you took the class and don't want to keep both blocks, will be collecting one for an Auction Quilt.

PLEASE PLEASE PLEASE. The beaded button I showed at the November Guild meeting is still missing. Could anyone attending the November meeting look thru their totes and baskets for the button. Thanks.

The monthly Board meeting has been changed to 6pm, still first Monday of the month at St. Andrew's. Board meetings are open to all Guild members, call me if you want an item on the agenda.

Looking forward to winter Retreat. Have gotten the Carol Doak paper pieced state stars blocks out. Have great plans to finish three blocks at Retreat, then I'll only have forty blocks to go.

Remember to complete the Survey, let us know what direction you'd like to see the Guild take and bring it to the February Guild meeting.

Janet Miller
President, GSAQG

Sherry Durringer received a "Calico Rose" for all of her hard work on "Storybook Quilts" and "Quilt To Go".

Brook Courchaine and Melanie McInnis were honored to receive a "Calico Rose" for their work on the Houston Bus Trip

2011 Program Notes

In 2011 we also have Sally Collins coming for workshops. Save your pennies, ask for these workshops as gifts from your family, sell some of your present projects to learn how to make even better projects!!

Thanks to all who helped make our January classes full. Susan Cleveland was a terrific teacher. She made everyone feel comfortable and yet they stretched themselves artistically. Great feeling!

In March we have another wonderful teacher with us, Karen K, Stone. I was delighted that both her classes filled up but don't despair if you wanted in. I am taking a wait list and will ask if more students would be OK if many sign up. To all those who didn't have their checkbooks, please mail your fees to me at my home, at the Guild PO, or be sure to have it in February. Otherwise I have to scratch you.

Friday, 11 March: On A Lark 9 - 4 at the church doors open 8:30

Sat. 12 March: Organization of Color in Scrap Quilts 1- 4 after the mtg.

Our Eleanor Wright Memorial teacher will be Sally Collins. She comes our way in June. Names will be taken in February and March from all who

Bright Hopes News

Following the holidays I didn't expect to receive a great many quilts but was quite pleasantly surprised to receive 21 quilts from guild members and 17 quilts donated by Linda Pearson, a friend of Charlotte Keener's. Thank you one and all!

A kit party is planned for after the February meeting. I need help putting labels on a quilts, winding thread for tying, matching donated tops to backs, creating top kits, kitting up quilt kits and creating tote kits. There is a lot to do and I don't know that all of it can be done by three p.m. - the time we have to be out of the building for a church event. I've been told we can work after other meetings if needed.

Volunteers putting labels on quilts will need their sewing machine or favorite handsewing needles, pins & scissors. Thread winders need scissors. Top-to-back matchers need scissors. Top kit makers will have to sort through all the squares I've cut. Quilt kitters will need their own rotary cutters. Tote-ers will need rotary cutters and those interested in making totes on-site will need a sewing machine, a serger and the usual tools of our trade.

I plan to bring cutting boards, fabric, iron & ironing board, water, sandwiches & dessert. Please help if you can. Sharon

Storybooks and Quilts to Go Needs You!

The Storybooks and Quilts to Go program had a busy 2010! The first months were spent retrieving the totes from various schools, updating the computer records, getting totes and log-books for completed new quilts and books, and generally figuring out what I'm doing (an ongoing learning process). By the end of the summer, totes containing 53 titles were distributed to five public school districts and four private schools. Then Caroline Wernli from University of Incarnate Word requested four quilts to share with the student teachers at the Dreeben School of Education. The combined numbers from books collected in May and December show that 5092 students participated in the program, and we can expect that number to go up next year.

I'm asking each of you to make a New Year's Resolution with me: to finish the Quilt in Progress you already have out or to take one of the 18 available books to make a companion quilt. These can be made by an individual or taken on as a project by a bee or other group. Currently there are 21 QIP's out. That's enough to fill five totes and add at least three schools to our distribution this fall. All the books will be on view at the February guild meeting.

Judging for the Alphabet Block Challenge is taking place at the February meeting. Come vote for your favorite block – there are prizes for 1st, 2nd and 3rd place, and it will be a hard choice – they are all great! If you still have a block out, you have until 9:30 that morning to get it turned in to qualify for a prize.

There were 7 Bring and Brag Quilts made for the new Non Profit Hospice location in San Antonio that Sandra Blooms sister in affiliated with. These will stay at the location to welcome all who come there. GREAT job ladies!!!!

Although worlds and cultures apart, the Kantha stitch from Bangladesh and West Bengal, India is quite similar to the Japanese Sashiko stitch. The basis of this Indian textile folk art embroidery is a running stitch. Kantha originally meant 'rags', possibly old sarees or shirts, but came to mean turning old textiles and worn out items into something beautiful.

Kanthas were made into shawls and quilts for warmth as far back as 500 years ago. The oldest surviving Kantha date from the early 1800s. The colors are muted from frequent launderings.

Starting with layers of worn clothes, running stitches were made throughout to hold the layers intact. Elaborate embroidered designs from everyday life, such as boats, rivers, flowers, trees, animals and people were added which enhanced the old fabric. The designs were not drawn on the cloth but were outlined with thread and then filled in. The black, red, blue, yellow, orange or green threads from the colored borders of the old garments were pulled out and used to embroider motifs such as the lotus, sun, moon, wheel, tree of life, paisley, and su asti or what we call swastika - an ancient symbol of good fortune. The designs were inspired by Alpana religious floor drawings. There were no set patterns and each craftsman could express themselves creatively.

Originally women from all social classes made Kanthas. They were almost never made for money. More than one woman would work on a project, taking months to a year to complete. The finished lightweight items were for daily use including quilts, pillow cases, prayer mats, wallets, book covers, trunk covers, shawls, and handkerchiefs. Many were passed down from generation to generation and used in the celebration of births, weddings, and other family occasions.

Interest in this craft grew in the 1980s and fashion markets throughout Europe and the US are distributing modern Kanthas today. Some things have changed in the creation of Kanthas. Most are now made by low-income families. Many women had to be taught how to embellish items, rather than having a family heritage of textile skills. Kantha is done on new cotton and silk. Frames are often used to hold the fabric. Designs are being traced. However, the old way of several women working on a piece does continue. The women feel they are producing high quality work and they are proud.

Recently, a collection of Kantha quilts was donated to the Philadelphia Museum of Art and exhibited in early 2010. The collection is documented in the book, Kantha: The Embroidered Quilts of Bengal from the Jill and Sheldon Bonovitz Collection and the Stella Kramrisch Collection of the Philadelphia Museum of Art by Darielle Mason.

February 2011 Block Party

Block party is 6"x6" finished. Look on our web site for a link to a color picture of the block and how it can look in a quilt. This is for the guild member who asked for a nine patch. Be sure to square up your blocks as you go.

Light area is dark and light pink. Dark area is dark and light red.

Bring as many as you like with your name attached to each one to the February Guild meeting. All names go in the basket and the lucky winner in the drawing gets all of the blocks.
