- QPC projects
- Bright Hopes quilts
- Smiles for everyone

It seems the “yard sale” was quite a success. The guild collected $93 and cleared space in our storage unit. How long that stays clear remains to be seen but our fabric czarina, DeaJae Shore, intends it be a long, long, long time. Most of the sellers were quite pleased with the results. I know I was very happy not to bring home those books, rulers, and patterns I cleared out. We should do this again next year, don't you think?

The call for volunteers to fill vacancies within the guild is showing success. Jen Eskridge has accepted one of the most pressing positions standing empty for over a year, Show co-chair. Yay! She will be shadowing Janet Miller so that she can oversee the 2021 show. Mary Ann Smith now has Rebecca Zoellich to help out with the magazine sales. Those boxes of magazines are very heavy and not easy to lug around. Bright Hopes now has Linda Nash as chair. Linda is new to the guild but quite ready for the task. She will be giving us guidelines for donation quilts and updates on where they are being delivered. Oralia Aves will be stepping in as Community Education chair, a position held by the late Kitty Janiga for several years. Oralia will be asking us to help her at times, so please consider giving her your name to have handy. Thelma Barbosa and Rebecca Solis volunteered to be at the sign in table. They will present happy faces to members and visitors alike. There is still a need for someone with basic computer skills to take charge of the attendance books. Can you do it? Sandra Lowell will be glad to show you what's needed.

Until we meet again - - - Mary

WELCOME!

New Members: Kristy Walker; Edmund Martinez, Celeste Lira; Shawn Loup; & Lynda Cicello.

Needed: A Few Good Ladies or Gentlemen

How would you like to take a free class every time an out of town teacher comes to the Guild? All you need to do is host the teacher, usually from Thursday to Sunday.

The host picks up the teacher at the airport so you need a vehicle that will hold 2-3 large suitcases. You will need to be able to lift the suitcases into your vehicle. You will have contacted the teacher ahead of time so you'll know if she/he wants to go sightseeing or shopping, or just have an early supper. Depending on the teacher's dietary needs or preferences, the host may take them to dinner Thursday, Friday and Saturday. You will also have to provide lunch on Friday and Saturday.

The host will be reimbursed for mileage and cost of all meals after receipts are given to the 3rd VP for Programs. The Guild will not cover the cost of any alcoholic beverages.

Upcoming Teachers

February teacher will be Dawn Heese, www.linenclosetdesign.com. Dawn started quilting in 1999 and published six books since 2008. Needleturn applique, wool applique and hand quilting are her areas of interest.

In April, Karen Eckmeier will be coming to the Guild. In 1996, Karen started working with art quilts and opened her business, The Quilted Lizard, in 2002. She has published several books, published in quilting magazines and had award-winning quilts the last seven years in Houston.

2.19 Pieces of the Past, 104: London Foundling Hospital Tokens, by Ellen Hernandez

The largest collection of 18th Century common life fabrics comes from an unusual source – The London Foundling Hospital of 1741. After seventeen years of campaigning the children’s home was established in 1739 by seaman Captain Thomas Coram, composer George Handel, and artist William Hogarth, with a Royal Charter from King George II. At the time, the United Kingdom had only one place for legitimate foundlings (abandoned children) and orphans, unlike Europe where many Catholic institutions had long been established. Life in the early 1700s was a struggle due to widespread poverty, disease, and pollution. Every year about one thousand babies were abandoned in London alone. There was no place for illegitimate children except the workhouse where mortality was over 90 per cent. Coram was determined to make a difference to provide care and education to the most vulnerable, especially girls. To raise funds for the home, Handel held benefit concerts of his Messiah, and Hogarth gathered artists to donate works for gallery displays.

Over 16,000 babies were accepted between 1741 and 1760. They were renamed with no record of their mothers. In case a mother might return to claim her child, they were required to leave a ‘token’, a small object such as buttons, lace, or a piece of fabric to be attached to registration forms. Fabric was often cut from the baby’s or mother’s clothing. Half of the ‘token’ was attached to the form and the other half given to the mother to use in future for identification. By 1790 over 18,000 tokens were filed, after which written receipts were given. Only 152 children were ever reclaimed. This patchwork of printed and woven fabric with embroidery was cut in half, and nine years later in 1775 Sara Bender used her half patchwork to reclaim her son, Benjamin.

Surprisingly 5,000 textile samples from this 18th Century period have survived. Because most of the mothers were poor the fabric samples are representative of what was available to their class. Their dress was an inexpensive version of fashionable clothing. Fabrics include those almost unknown today – camblet, fustian, susy, cherryderry, and calamanco. There are ribbons, embroidery, and baby clothes, all providing a most unique insight into the daily life of over 270 years ago.

What became of the children? Sadly, almost two thirds from the early years died from infections and epidemics. Babies were sent to country homes where they were fostered by wet nurses until age four. Girls surviving to their mid-teens were apprenticed as servants and boys were sent as laborers or to the Army.

The Hospital Home operated until 1954. Over 25,000 children had resided there. In 2004 the 1930s building built on the original site was turned into the Foundling Museum. Collections include 18th Century art by Hogarth and others, and an archive of Handel’s work. Museum proceeds support Coram, a children’s charity.

2019 Raffle Quilt

2019 Quilt Show

We have 229 days until the 2019 Quilt Show, Color The World With Quilts. The show is September 20 and 21, at the SA Event Center, 410 and Marbach. Challenge fabric is still available; buy a fat quarter or two for $5.00 ea. from Candy Reinhard at the Guild meeting.

Stop by the Show table to pick up sale ticket packets and bookmarks. The raffle quilt is scheduled to be at Sew Special during the Bluebonnet Shop Hop, March 28-30. Please sign-up for a 2 hr. shift. We will need to get the raffle quilt to as many venues as possible, if you have a club, group or job that will allow the quilt to be displayed PLEASE let me know. I hope that you can sell tickets but even displaying the quilt and handing out bookmarks will help get the word out about the show.

We are working on show sponsors. Sew Special has agreed to be the Gold Sponsor, $500.00 Best of Show award. Before the holidays, we had tentative agreements from two others for a Silver and a Bronze sponsorship. We still need a Silver and three Bronze sponsor, if you are interested in being a sponsor please see Ida Blankenship Kujawski or me.

I hope that you are working on a quilt or 2-3 quilts for the show. We have room to display over 300 quilts so get the sewing machines going, get those tops quilted and be proud to show off the Guild's many, many talented members.
